

PhD in PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

RIGOROUS, SUPPORTIVE, COLLABORATIVE

The PhD in Public Administration at the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) creates a supportive, collaborative, and rigorous environment for students who will develop their intellectual identities and a comprehensive understanding of the field with a range of research traditions.

Through the PhD program, students are empowered to establish a strong intellectual identity. They will be introduced to different knowledge traditions and become thoroughly immersed in the discourse of public administration and its integration of theory and practice. We foster a culture of openness where the process of knowledge creation among students is a common enterprise.

As our students move through the program, they have the opportunities to teach and to work one-on-one with faculty. When they graduate, they are prepared to understand and help solve public problems as an academic or as a practitioner.
