

SOCIAL JUSTICE AND ETHICS

This series will explore the Social Work Code of Ethics in relation to the field’s history of social justice. Each session will examine a different level of social work, its relationship with social justice, and related ethical considerations. Attendees will be encouraged to interrogate their own practices to ensure they are not only aligned with ethical principles, but also are centering the needs and interests of their clients. Lastly, the series will explore various social justice centered frameworks and strategies which can be implemented in settings across the field of social work.

Each session will examine a different level of social work, its relationship with social justice, and related ethical considerations. While you can purchase sessions individually, we highly recommend enrolling in the complete series to fully benefit from the progressive learning experience.

SPEAKER: ANDREW ALEMAN, LICSW

Andrew Alemán, LCSW (He | Him | His) is a Licensed Clinical Social Worker residing in Omaha, NE. Mr. Alemán’s local and national work is based in dismantling systems of oppression and shifting power to those who are targets of these oppressive systems.
